

Love of Land and Children

by Rosie Laquerre

For Ron Koss, the road to East Montpelier began when he was a young man in his twenties, just after reading the book, Living the Good Life – How to Live Sanelly and Simply in a Troubled World, by Helen and Scott Nearing. He was so inspired by their teachings that he traveled across the country and settled in Plainfield. When the Bushey “back farm” in the Horn of the Moon area of East Montpelier came up for sale in 1978, Ron and his twin brother, Arnie, walked the land, talked to the owners, and felt a connection to it that convinced them to buy.

Ron met Carley Claghorn when they were both hired to work at a children’s school in Plainfield. Carley, who had grown up in central Massachusetts, followed one of her sisters to Plainfield, where Carley was planning to intern in home birthing. Ron and Carley married, built a home, started their family, and visited with their neighbors on Horn of the Moon and Long Meadow Brook—listening to their stories.

One neighbor, George Hull, remembered when, as a boy, he was asked to deliver milk from his family farm to the Civilian Conservation Corps workers who were building the Wrightsville Dam on the back side of the hill. The Hulls and Cotes remembered logging with horses in the woods by Long Meadow Brook. Phil and Roberta Bushey’s stories were of the land that was once their farm and the delight they took in it. For years after they sold the property to Ron and Carley, Phil Bushey hunted in the “back woods” with the blessings of the new owners. Carley noted, “They were Phil’s woods. He grew up there, and they were a part of him.” To this day, a walk in the woods may yield a relic of the old farm—a cow bell or the blade from a two-man crosscut saw.

The oral history allowed Ron and Carley to form a lasting connection with the property, as well as a sense of the place. They have both been active in advocating for their land and that of their neighbors—working with owners and neighbors to create conservation easements and restrictive covenants to prevent clear cutting and cell tower development. Ron refers to the Hulls, Busheys, Cotes, and Lanes as the last of the generational “real” Vermonters. They formed a tight community in their neighborhood that still flourishes today.

Ron and Carley’s work lives have also shown their love for land and children. They worked together as directors of the Moorehaven Group Home in 1981. In 1984, they were selected to be the first directors of the Ronald McDonald house in Burlington when the facility began offering a “home away from home” for families who had children in treatment for serious illness at the UVM Medical Center. During the early 1980s, Carley was home with their boys, Gabriel and Aaron, but found time to work with seven

TOP OF THE SIGNPOST

As seems to happen regularly (how do I manage to forget from year to year?), summer comes without any warning. I left for a visit to my children on May 5. It was still pretty chilly, and there was not one bud on any tree or shrub that looked willing to blossom anytime soon. When I returned to Vermont on May 15, it was summer—everything dressed in all shades of green and in full bloom. The snap peas I planted, optimistically, on April 25 were more than eight inches tall and needed support.

The other thing I tend to forget (or repress) is how very brief summer is and how much I miss it when it's gone. So, I remind you, as I try to remember myself, to savor and enjoy this brief and beautiful time in this wonderful place.

Does Your House Have a Story? The Signpost Wants to Hear It

Each year, the September-October issue of the Signpost features a “theme”—a topic about which readers are asked to comment. In the past you have shared thoughts on your favorite hiking, biking, and outdoor places, the origin of your street names, wild animals who visit you, as well as many more topics. (See the Signpost archive online at emsignpost.com.)

This year we hope to hear about interesting (funny, eerie, odd, scary or any adjective you can think of) stories about your homes. Does your house have an interesting past, present, or maybe even an idea for an interesting future? Send 100-200 words about what makes your house interesting to Edie Miller at emillervt@comcast.net. The deadline is Monday, August 1, 2022.

Ellie May's Doggie Daycare

by Renee Kievit-Kylar

Greetings. My name is Ellie May, and I am an 80-pound Bernese Mountain Dog. I live with my family on US Rt. 2 across from Codling Road, but my favorite place to spend time is at Ellie May's Doggie Daycare, which luckily is attached to my house!

My mom and dad, Patti and Chris Morrison, opened the daycare in 2021. They worked hard to get things ready, visiting other doggie daycares to get ideas and renovating the space to make it work for my dog friends to come visit. The space used to be the showroom for Gallery of Cabinets, owned by my grandparents, Lawrie (whom I sadly never met) and Mary Morrison. My dad, Chris, grew up in our house, which my grandparents purchased in 1975. He worked at the cabinet shop for over 30 years. When my parents met and fell in love, my dad moved to Barre with my mom and raised their pups—I mean, children: Bobby, Morgan, and Brooke. After my grandfather passed away, my mom and dad moved into their house. My grandmother Mary lives very close by in Plainfield and babysits for me often.

At first, they used the old showroom for storage but kept thinking about what to do with the big space. They brought me home as a puppy (I was pretty cute!) about two weeks before everything shut down because of Covid. Both of my parents work full-time jobs but realized how much they enjoyed being with me when they had to work from home. And there were many people who got puppies while they were working from home and eventually had to go back to their offices. Soooo, they decided to start a doggie daycare! They felt so much better leaving me with my friends so they could go back to work!

Every day I have between 15 and 20 friends to play with, although I do have my best friends: Sterling (a Great Dane), Rayne, and Yukon (both huskies). We are the four Musketeers and love to tumble and rumble together. My favorite puppy is Meerah, also a Bernese Mountain Dog, so she looks like a mini-me (but is growing up fast)! Turk is another favorite puppy of mine that tends to follow me wherever I go. He thinks that I am his big sister. I have never been to human daycare, but I have overheard from my mom that they modeled our doggie daycare after those. Lauren DeBarge is our best human; she runs the place. We know that she makes things fun and keeps us safe. We have a structured schedule including morning and afternoon activities, lunch, nap time, and individual time each day for those special pats and rubs. We play Ring Around the Rosie and other pre-school games, and we have wonderful toys and play structures in the yard. Because some of us are large, there is a separate place for small dogs and puppies.

Generally, we all get along pretty well. All new dogs go through an evaluation to see if they will fit in with the rest of the crowd. My mom says if they don't like me, they can't come! I am very attached to all of my friends, even though some only come a few days or hours a week while others are here every day. At the end of the day, we are a bunch of pooped pups! I crawl into bed and take a rest before dinner. Then I am ready for evening cuddles.

Of the few other doggie daycare places nearby, my parents are especially fond of the humans at Four Paws Inn in Barre. Since we do limited overnight boarding, we recommend parents use Four Paws Inn for sleepovers. My daycare has provided bed and breakfast, as we call it, for some of my friends, but that is not our focus. We like being a family at the end of the day, and Lauren needs to go home and rest because we tire her out!

I have wondered how my mom, dad, and Lauren learned how to run such a fun place. I realize that they just try things out. If something works, great; if not, they change it. They also take suggestions from parents. Mom says they have learned A LOT since they opened the doggie daycare.

Right now, there is a six-month waiting list. If your human is looking for doggie daycare, they can fill out an application on our website at elliemaysdaycare.com.

Thanks for listening. Here's a slurp and cuddle for each of you!

—Renee Kievit-Kylar has lived with her husband, Doug, on Brazier Road for almost 40 years. She doesn't have a dog at the moment but loves dogs who are smart and sweet, like Ellie May.

Change is in the Air

This spring, we are seeing the kind of change that happens only every couple of decades. Town and Zoning Administrator Bruce Johnson, Treasurer Don Welch, and Municipal Assistant Denise Sparrow will all be retiring within the next few months. It's very much a changing of the guard.

Last July, after holding the job for ten years, Don Welch announced that he will retire as of August 2022. A committee of residents and town officials was appointed and began meeting in January to search for the next treasurer. From the pool of candidates, two skilled and talented people were recommended to the Selectboard.

When Bruce Johnson announced his resignation effective as of June 30, the Selectboard took another look at the treasurer candidate pool and agreed that those who had been recommended would be excellent replacements for both the town administrator and treasurer positions.

Gina Jenkins is a resident of Lyle Young Road and began training with Bruce on April 22. Michele Pallas of Braintree began working with Don on May 9. We are very fortunate to have this "overlap" time for our new staff to work with our seasoned veterans.

Denise Sparrow has graciously agreed to stay through August 12 to assist with the August primary election. It's going to take an incredibly special person to fill those shoes!

While change can be disconcerting, townspeople should expect many things to remain the same. You can look forward to receiving the same great service you have come to expect. We will miss seeing the familiar faces we've come to know and trust. But rest assured, our new staff members are enthusiastic and excited to become part of our team.

Another Successful Year Greening Up

Selectboard member Carl Etnier, Town Moderator Michael Duane, and former Town Administrator Bruce Johnson.

Success comes from the joint efforts of all who take the time to clean up East Montpelier neighborhoods. Thanks to those individuals who drove their personal trucks and trailers to collect bags from the roads and to pick up large items. Volunteers at the collection site separated cans and bottles from trash, placed tires in the dump truck, recorded cleared areas and those who dropped off trash. Thanks to Ron Baker, Erin Borland, Rob Chickering, Robert Duncan, Paul Erlbaum, Doug Kievet-Kyler, Town Clerk Rosie Laquerre, Matt L., Susan McKinney, Ross Mroczek, Bob Onne, Justin Sayers, Ed Radzvilla, Nick Van Den Berg, and anybody whose name I may have missed. Special thanks to Renée Carpenter and Deb Fillion, who coordinated cleanup efforts in specific locations.

Helping nourish volunteers were Rachel Grossman and Sue Stephens, who baked delicious cookies, as well as Hunger Mountain Coop and Shaw's, who provided water, fruit, and granola bars.

Special thanks to Bragg Farm, Dudley's Store, East Montpelier Elementary School, East Montpelier Home Center, Fox Market, Morse Farm, North Country Federal Credit Union, and the Town Office for hanging posters at their facilities and distributing Green Up bags.

Finally, Karen Lieberman took the refundable bottles to Beverage Baron in Barre as a fundraiser for the U-32 Green Team's Pollinator Garden. And a tip of the hat to Rosie Laquerre, who followed behind Karen to provide assistance.

Got Eggs? Two Young Entrepreneurs Do

by Ann Stanton

In spring, thoughts turn to eggs if you happen to be Ezra Chapin and Claire Phillips. Each separately had the same idea, did research, and enlisted the support of family and friends to start their own businesses.

In May 2021, Ezra, (pictured left) now age 11, decided to raise chicks and sell eggs. He bought sixteen chicks from Tractor Supply and developed a customer base of five weekly customers. After wintering over, the hens now have an expanded yard; and the flock soon will expand with four baby chicks who will eventually add blue eggs to the mix. Much of the earnings go to feed and supplies; any extra is his spending money. Why? Ezra explains that he loves being with animals and is business-minded. As a bonus, the chickens raise his spirits. He enjoys being self-reliant and providing his own family with eggs.

In March 2020, Claire, (pictured below) now age 14, was looking for different varieties of chickens to add to her family's flock of free-run chickens. There were so many, and she wanted to try them all. But to buy specialty chicks,

she had to order three of each. Her brilliant idea: order three chicks of 22 different varieties, keep one, and sell the others. That first year, she ordered 80 chicks. (This year, 100!) She designed a website for people to pre-order chicks. She also set up an egg business with about 20 customers, served by her personal flock. Why? She declares that she just loves chickens. She loves running a business and making new innovations each year. By July, she will stock a self-service egg stand at 2075 VT Rt. 14S. Check out her website roostngardensvt.com to see her amazing variety of chickens—she took all the pictures herself.

You can also purchase eggs at these East Montpelier businesses:

- Anderbell Acres, 1320 Horn of the Moon Road: $5/dozen, jumbo eggs
- Center Farm, 1820 Center Rd: $5/dozen, in cooler on porch
- Dave and Cait Petty, 315 Horn of the Moon Road: $4/dozen
- Dennis Sherman, Rt. 14 South in the village: $3/dozen, $5/two dozen
- Premont Farm Eggs, 40 Lyle Haven Road: $3/dozen, in fridge on porch

Paulie's Recipe Pineapple Delight

INGREDIENTS

- 1 large can of pineapple, drained (can be crushed or chunks)
- 1 1/2 cups cold cooked rice
- 1 pint of cream, whipped
- 1/2 cup sugar

DIRECTIONS

Mix pineapple and rice; fold in whipped cream. Sweeten to taste with about 1/2 cup sugar. Pour into cups and refrigerate until served. Serves six to eight.

Comment from Paulie Coburn: This is a simple and refreshing summer dessert. I remember my mother making it in the 1940s or 1950s.

From the North Montpelier Community Cookbook, assembled by the Friendly Circle of North Montpelier. Recipe submitted by M. Gibbs.

Funding Goal Reached for New Trail

The statewide Cross Vermont Trail Association (CVTA), which has worked closely with East Montpelier's trails organization for many years, will be enlarging and enhancing the trail system in our town this year and next. CVTA announced it has raised the $200,000 needed to complete the Winooski Bridge Project which involves trails on both sides of the new Winooski Bridge built last summer. In all, the trail will go from the existing Montpelier Bike Path at Gallison Hill Road in Montpelier, up to U-32 School, over the Winooski Bridge and upstream along the Winooski River, finally cutting cross country to join the existing rail trail at VT Rt. 14.

Grants from the Northern Borders Regional Commission, the State of Vermont, and private donors will "improve trail accessibility for this generation and generations to come, to help ensure a healthy economic recovery from the Covid-19 crisis, with development rooted in environmental quality," according to the Vermont Department of Forests, Parks and Recreation description of the grants made for this project.

Summary of Upcoming Cross Vermont Trail Project Construction Schedule

- The Winooski Bridge and the trail on either side of it, out to the new US Rt. 2 trailhead, will open late spring 2022.
- Side trails connecting to U-32 and providing access along the river and a new trailhead at Gallison Hill Road will open later in 2022.
- The rest of the trail will be built across East Montpelier in 2023, connecting to VT Rt. 14 where the existing trail begins on the old railbed.

Volunteer Opportunities

Though much of the work will be done with mechanized earth moving equipment, there will be opportunities for volunteers to contribute to the project, including building wooden bridges and other basic carpentry projects. Avid outdoors people can find a project map and volunteer opportunities at crossvermont.org. The trail will be built using standards that make it accessible to people of all ages and abilities.

The Winooski Bridge Project will further CVTA's mission to create multi-use trails throughout Vermont, accessible and inviting for all, that provide opportunities for healthy outdoor activities and permanent preservation of our local, natural world. For more information, contact Greg Western, Executive Director CVTA, at greg@crossvermont.org.

How Can It Be?

by Jo Bower

How can it be?

That my soul sinks into the hollows of this place
as if it has always habited here...

How can it be?

That I so easily add layers of living to accommodate the suddenly shifting seasons
after a lifetime of flat city dwelling...

How can it be?

That my feet find purchase
on pebbly, worn shores
where wild birds and bears
come to breed and feed...

How can it be?

That words born in this space spring and sprout with wild abandon years after I thought the writer's muse had gone...

How can it be?

That after years of moving through too many spaces carrying the concrete weight of yearning for a different life that I find myself here, in the place
I was always meant to be...

How can it be?

—Jo Bower has lived in East Montpelier since October 2020. This poem is an inquiry into the unexpected convergence of events that led her to leave familiar routines in Massachusetts to begin a life of writing and other adventures in Vermont.

other families to create what we now know as the Children's Garden Waldorf school in Montpelier. Carley and Ron have also worked with the Orchard Valley School in East Montpelier, where Ron served on the board of directors for many years.

Ron and his brother, Arnie, both lifelong entrepreneurs, built what became the first organic baby food manufacturer in the United States. The mission of Earth's Best was to produce foods that were wholesome and nourishing for babies while promoting environmental responsibility. It was an incredible uphill battle producing and marketing an organic baby food at a time when corporate giants like Gerber, Beechnut, and Heinz were the only other names on grocery store shelves. In 1987, organic wasn't a concept that had yet caught on with the mainstream American family; but perseverance paid off, and the brand lives on today—now owned by The Hain Celestial Group.

Since Earth's Best, Ron has kept busy creating other food innovations and consulting with other entrepreneurial businesses. He is a founding board member of the Global Health Media Project, whose mission is "to improve healthcare and health outcomes, especially in low-resource settings." In 2018, Ron and Arnie Koss were inducted into the 2018 New Hope Network's Hall of Legends as pioneers in the natural and organic foods industry for their work with Earth's Best.

As their boys grew older, Carley went to nursing school and graduated at the age of 50. Since then, and until mid-April of this year, she has worked at Copley's birthing center, caring for women and their babies as they begin their life journeys. It's certainly been an exciting and full life for the Koss-Claghorn family, but there is always more work to do. Carley is writing a conservation grant for their land to stop soil erosion and discharge on the deteriorating logging roads in the area, slow the invasive species that are spreading, and increase songbird habitat. As for Ron, he recently published the book, Parallel: A Global Warming Economic and Activist Paradigm. Be sure to ask him about it the next time you see him at the Co-op.

Twin Valley Senior Center is Open

Twin Valley Senior Center welcomes all to come for noon-time meals Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays. It's a great way to get out and socialize. We continue to implement safe Covid protocols for all. In addition to meals, we offer monthly blood pressure and foot clinics. We also have a variety of classes: Bone Builders, Fall Prevention, Chair yoga, Tai Chi, and Art Group. There is often a cribbage game going and even jigsaw puzzles to work on.

TVSC is in need of in-house volunteers: kitchen help to heat up and serve the noon-time meals, and hosts to come socialize with community members. This involves only four hours of your time on a Monday, Wednesday, or Friday. Please give TVSC as much of your time as your schedule allows—once a month, once a week, or more if you can.

Soon we will have a new website, but until then, come check us out! Stop by any Monday, Wednesday, or Friday from 9:00 am to 2:00 pm. If you have questions, please contact Gene Troia, Executive Director, at (802) 223-3322.
