TO MOTHER WITH LAUGHTER: HELEN ALLEN

Although the phrase, Town Fathers, has been used for years, we rarely hear about Town Mothers. Yet if you know Helen Allen, you will realize that she is certainly one of the East Montpelier women who should hold this title. Helen brings to this town the special skills and concerns that mothers have, and she makes no dividing line between using these gifts for her own family and using them to serve the needs of the community.

Helen and her husband George and their first three children, Kate, Beth, and George, moved in 1950 to the lovely old home where Helen still lives, on Route 14 just across the bridge in the Village. Before moving here, they had lived in Essex Junction while George attended UVM. Following graduation, he was hired by the Soil Conservation Service in Montpelier. After searching for a house in Montpelier, they extended their search to East Montpelier and decided to buy a house which had stood empty for some time and needed work, inside and out, but seemed to be the right house for them. Helen says that after the decision was made and the house purchased, she and George went to the Essex Fair where they happened to meet several people they knew and of course told them their news. George and Helen were amazed to learn that a few of those people had words of warning about East Montpelier -- a small town, gossipy and in-grown.

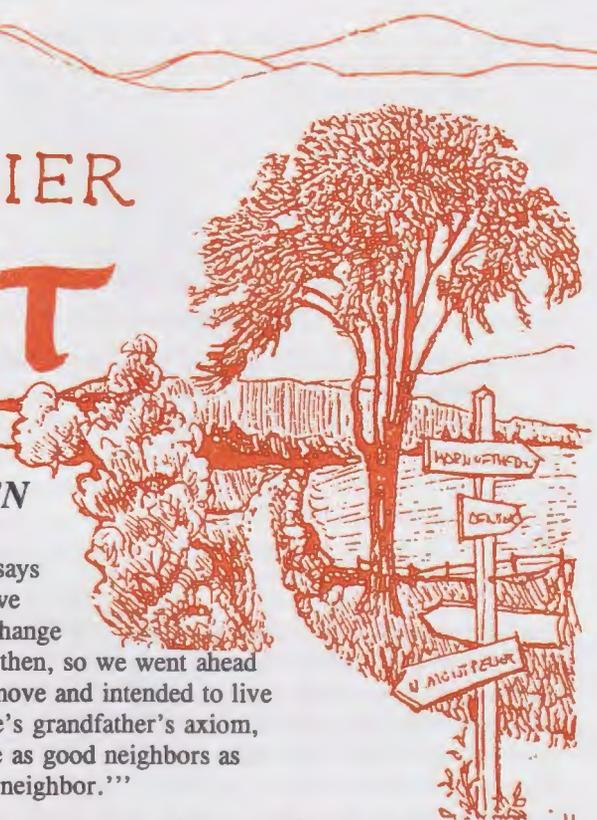

Helen Allen

“Well”, says Helen, “we couldn’t change our plans then, so we went ahead with the move and intended to live by George’s grandfather’s axiom, ‘You have as good neighbors as you are a neighbor.’”

Apparently from the very beginning those good neighbors began to appear. Jane (Page) Glen arrived on the steps to offer her sister, Patty, as a baby sitter; their mother, Susan, brought over four jars of raspberry jam; Marshall Hodgeman (whom they had known in their mutual hometown of Newport) showed up to do some electrical work; Phyllis (Dudley) Duso invited Helen to be part of the Brick Church Club; and of course the list goes on -- establishing neighborly connections that bonded the Allens with their town.

Four more children, Lynne, Nancy, Timothy, and Wendy, were born. With a family of seven children needing community activities in which to grow, Helen became involved with Bible School and Sunday School and was one of those who helped the Old Brick Church resume a full schedule of regular church activities. She supported the hiring of Don Sears to lead worship and often invited him to Sunday dinner. She was a Cub Scout den mother for eleven years, helped with 4-H activities, and worked a couple of years with the hot lunch program at the new elementary school, after they hired her as a “substitute” at the last minute and then needed her to stay on. After she worked at the elementary school, Tom Keck recruited her to work as an assistant in the Industrial Arts Department at U-32 High School. She continued working at U-32 in the Living Arts Department and the Resource Center until she and George retired in 1980. Helen continues to serve on the Advisory Board for the Human Services Vocational Program which is now located at the Barre Vocational School.

Through those years, if a child needed an extra touch of mothering, Helen was there, showing a Cub Scout how to take care of his tie, transporting kids to activities, taking a sick child to her house until a parent could come, or just giving a listening ear and a sense of stability in what for many children was a topsy-turvy world. Now Helen does these things for her 13 grandchildren when they have the opportunity to be with her, for an eight-year-old boy for whom she serves as a guardian ad litem, and for other children, and grown-ups too, who are fortunate enough to have their paths cross with hers.

Helen's talent as a cook is another of her skills which was first used for her family but also shared with the larger community. As Helen says, "I learned quantity cooking at home with my large family." Then not only did she cook at the school, but she was, and still is, one of those in the Old Brick Church kitchen whenever there's a church meal to be prepared. For Helen, a natural part of attending a church meeting is bringing the refreshments.

The surroundings in Helen's home glow with her talents. From the empty neglected house it was when the Allens bought it, she has created a warm, inviting home of comfort and charm. The house speaks of her love and caring. Among its treasures Helen is especially pleased to display a quilt, each piece contributed by a family member, depicting something special to that person. Their children gave it to Helen and George just a few years before George's death in 1985. Helen notes, with pride and sadness, that it was the support of her husband George that made it possible for her to have such a full life.

Helen's many interests still keep her very busy. She enjoys learning about other countries through AFS, and she continues to travel, especially when she can visit her children in the USA or abroad. She spends time at her camp on Echo Lake each summer where many of her children and grandchildren visit her. Music is also a continuing source of enjoyment.

The family quilt was the beginning of an idea for Helen, and now one of her many sewing projects includes making a family quilt for each of her children using squares that they make and send to her.

"Well," says Helen, "at 75 I hope I still have something to contribute." Indeed she does!

TOP OF THE SIGNPOST

Have you ever had the feeling that just when everything's going well, the other shoe is about to drop? That's where the Signpost was when we entered our fourth year last fall. We were proud that the paper had gotten that far, then as the months wore on we began to view our dwindling bank account with alarm. Would you miss us if we stopped publishing? We hoped so. Would we miss working on each successive issue around the year? You bet we would!

We told you of our plight. Your immediate response, written on your checkbooks, filled the mailbox, and we marveled again at what a supportive town we live in. Thanks to your vote of confidence, we are close to affording the remaining issues of this volume. Some of you have given before, some are new supporters. We thank you all. We know we mustn't stop checking the mailbox, but we are solvent for the moment.

Here's a brief review of how our budget works. We publish six issues each year, and each issue cost us between $500 and $600, postage and all. Since we have no angel to underwrite us nor any outside grant money, we raise all our funds in our own community. Subscriptions, you say? A poor solution since they take so much record-keeping and, more importantly, the Signpost's goal is to reach every household in town. Advertising doesn't pay for the extra space it requires and also takes more staff. So we come back to you readers. Every September our "Angel Committee" organizes a giant Rally Day Auction to benefit the Signpost. The two we've had so far have each raised enough to pay for about two issues. For the other four, we depend on you.

So far you have certainly responded. Thank you all. Keep your support coming and if you haven't paid your share yet, help out if you can. East Montpelier is a town with many unique things about it. We would like the Signpost to be one of them.

HELPING YOUR NEIGHBORS

Vermont Food Bank

While East Montpelier does not have a foodshelf located in town, townspeople do go to the foodshelf located in the Community Building in Marshfield. The two churches in town also collect food items each week to take there.

But the biggest source of foodstuffs for local food pantries and other meal providers is the Vermont Food Bank, at a cost of about a third of retail prices.

A benefit dinner for the Vermont Food Bank is being held Monday evening, March 7, at National Life Insurance Co. More than 30 restaurants will be showcasing their talents.

Tickets are $30 and if you'd like to reserve them, and/or would like to be seated with a church group, please call Edith Stedman at 229-5079. Please leave a message on her answering machine if she's not there, and she will get back to you.

THE ADDRESS BLUES

If you don't receive this issue, tell us!

Has your address changed from Calais Stage to HCR 32? Have you moved to a new address in town since you registered to vote? Do you have a new neighbor who doesn't receive the Signpost?

These and other address problems plague us. They also cost us 29 cents or more each time they occur. Our mailing list was laboriously worked out from the checklist, property lists, and any other information we had. Postal people are increasingly particular about complete and correct addresses. Life-long residents may be stamped "Unknown" if their addresses aren't precise. Please help us out.

The Signpost will have a table at Town Meeting Day with our complete mailing list. Take a minute to check your address as you pass by. Also to list folks you find aren't on the list at all. We'll also have plenty of back issues if your file is incomplete. See you there.

FIRE DEPARTMENT

1994 is turning out to be a very busy year for the East Montpelier Fire Department. During the month of January, the EMFD and Fast Squad responded to 19 emergency medical and 11 fire calls. Many members have enrolled in various schools to acquire or enhance their fire fighting and/or emergency medical skills. The EMFD will be hosting a six-hour hazardous materials school at the fire station during the month of February.

The Department has started to convert the newly acquired Dodge pickup into a grass/brush fire vehicle with a completion date of March 1, just in time for the "grass fire season." Engine One, which is housed in the village station, has had major mechanical work and will soon have some body work done on it to alleviate serious rust problems.

The Fire Department has found that having Engine One in the Village greatly reduces our response time to the east side of town. The Department's lease of the space in the Washington Electric garage across from the town municipal building is working well.

In the past couple of years, we've been looking at higher repair bills for aging fire apparatus. The current apparatus ranges from 14 to 25 years old. With this in mind and along with training and maintaining equipment, the members have been busy putting together the specifications for a new pumper/tanker. The plans are almost complete and it is expected to cost $160,000. The citizens of East Montpelier and Calais are being asked to pay for this pumper/tanker on a two-thirds, one-third share, the same proportions as the operating budget is based on. East Montpelier's share will be $106,700. If any citizen of East Montpelier has any questions regarding the purchase of this new truck, contact any member of the Department.

DANFORTH SUGAR HOUSE: A LONG-TIME SWEET

If you are a sugarmaker in Central Vermont, or New England for that matter, you probably already know the name of Nate Danforth. But really getting to know Nate is like getting to know one of the maple trees that he is so fond of. The visible tree seems whole and complete, but there is so much more below the ground. As with the tree, Nate's family roots run deep here in Vermont and are responsible for much of what he is today. His forebears farmed and sugared in Norwich, Vermont, until 1888 when they moved to the farm in Tunbridge where Nate grew up. There his grandfather gathered in the sugarbush. By the '30s Nate's father "Shorty" Danforth was the driving force in the family's sugaring operation. Over the years he became very active in Vermont Sugarmakers Association while continuing to expand the operation until it peaked at 5,500 taps in the 1960s.

When Nate was quite young, his father had to stop dairy farming for health reasons, so most of his childhood memories are of the family sugaring operation. His involvement with sugaring began while playing with his older brother and sister behind his grandfather's horse-drawn dray. While Nate was still in high school, his father let him install some of the first plastic tubing in Vermont on 500 hillside taps.

In 1966 Nate's father bought a small restaurant and cider mill in Royalton. He believed that a large scale centralized maple boiling factory was the way to go, so with Nate's help they cut timber from their farm in Tunbridge for the materials to convert the old cider mill into a sugar house. For this building they used a state-of-the-art steam operated sugaring rig, a ten-wheel tank truck and a ¾-ton pickup with a tank to transport and boil the sap from 15-20,000 taps! Nate helped weekends and vacations while attending the University of Vermont. Unfortunately, due to a heart condition, Shorty eventually had to end the operation and sell the equipment.

Nate finished his studies at UVM and graduated with a degree in civil engineering. He landed a job with the State of Vermont in the Agency of Transportation. After commuting for a year he moved to East Montpelier in 1970. By the mid-70s Nate was sugaring back on the "home place" in Tunbridge with a second-hand evaporator he bought at a farm auction in Montpelier. Before long he had more than doubled his taps from 1,000 to 2,500 and replaced the evaporator with a larger one. Now he was not only working full time for the State of Vermont, raising a young family, and sugaring in Tunbridge nights and weekends, but he had started to sell maple equipment to friends and neighbors.

It is easy to see when you talk to Nate that money is not the prime motivational factor in all of this; rather, it is the love of maple sugaring. It is the need to be a part of a dynamic agricultural process, dealing and sharing with honest, hard-working people. As sugaring has become more complicated, Nate saw the genuine need for a "supermarket" approach to selling supplies, a place where everyone, from the backyard sugarmaker to the large producer, could go and get not only the items they needed off the shelf but also technical information any day of the week. As his business has grown, he has struggled to maintain a supportive atmosphere where customers can feel free to chat or ask questions. It is in this spirit that Nate sponsors his annual spring sugarmakers' seminar where he brings together experts from government and the industry with as many as 200 people from all over New England and New York to exchange information. All donations for attendance are given to the UVM Maple Research Center in Proctor.

Nate Danforth

Nate lives behind the store on Route 2 with his wife Dotty. He has two daughters, Allison, a senior at Northeastern University in Boston, and Sarah, a senior at U-32, and two step-children, Eric and Shana, who also attend U-32. When he's not working for the State or at the sugarhouse you might find Nate dancing the Texas Two Step with Dotty or off canoeing or camping with the family. You might even find him behind the wheel of a BMW at New Hampshire International Speedway where he teaches the finer points of driving at 120 mph for the BMW Club!
