Austin Cleaves: Deep Roots and a Love for the Land

As you drive past the East Montpelier Elementary School and turn onto Lyle Young Road, your eyes are drawn to the neat farmstead comprised of modern and historical buildings known as Fairmont Farm. This farm has been in family ownership since 1788. The man with a quick sense of humor who has carried on his family's agricultural heritage is none other than Austin Cleaves.

Austin's mother Kate and father Paul were from Barre and Montpelier respectively. Paul Cleaves' family, the Fosters, were early settlers of East Montpelier. Austin was born and raised in West Springfield, MA, as his father had set up his dental practice in that city. From the age of 14, Austin began coming to visit Lyle and Kate Young, his great aunt and uncle, at their farm, the present Fairmont Farm. From the age of 14 through college, he spent all of his school vacations helping Lyle and Kate tend their 30 milking cows, harvest hay and assist with maple sugaring.

From his early years at the Youngs, he decided to make a career of agriculture. He graduated from UVM in 1962 with a B.S. degree in agriculture. Upon graduation, he moved to East Montpelier and continued working for the Youngs.

Austin married the former Kate Allen in 1964, and they had two daughters, JoEllen and Sarah. JoEllen is now 31 and resides in South Carolina. Sarah is 27 and has a young son Aeson. Aeson loves to call grandpa and ask about the cows. In later years Austin and Kate divorced.

In 1966, through the generosity of Lyle and Kate Young, Austin took over management of the farm. Over the years he made many improvements to the buildings and the land. He expanded the herd from 30 cows to 40, eventually to 80. Austin has always prided himself on having a neat, clean operation. Over the years he has received many awards for milk quality and production. That tradition continues today.

During our visit, I asked Austin to provide some insight into what East Montpelier was like when he first moved to town in 1962. He feels the most visible change is the decline in the number of farms. In 1962, there were 50 farms in town shipping milk. Today there are only seven!

In those days, it was not unusual to see a line of stake-body trucks along Route 2 in front of Buttrick's Creamery (now home to the Creamery Store and East Montpelier Home Center) preparing to unload 40 quart milk cans for processing from area farms. He says, "From Dudley's Store to my farm, I would pass six farms, all of which were making a living from the land. Today there are none. From another perspective, though, the seven remaining farms in town today produce more milk than the 50 did in 1962."

I asked Austin what he thinks the future for agriculture holds. He feels we will continue to see further consolidation of fewer but larger dairy operations to take advantage of economies of scale. But he did not write off the smaller farms either. He feels these farms can survive by producing niche or specialty food products. "I think it is exciting to see diversified farming operations prosper in our town such as the Cate Farm (organic vegetables), Carver's Tree Farm, Merritt's Winooski Valley Apple Orchard and the Morse and Bragg Farms (maple, fruit and vegetable products) to name a few."

Top of the Signpost

In a whimsical mood the other day, I was comparing my life to a giant garden. It is made up of so many pieces, some sturdy and prosaic like potatoes and onions, others frilly exotics like arugula. My backyard garden has a great many flowers mixed among the vegetables, and my life is no different. Should I go on and consider the weeds which grow there, too? And such elements as lime, fertilizer and compost? They're all part of that patchwork that I love and love to work in.

I know that the garden of my life is made up of essentials and nonessentials, and what a good time to consider them. Many Vermonters discovered during our January ice storm what is truly essential. Living without heat, electricity, and water must have seemed the ultimate test, but living without people and the services they provide is impossible. We in this area were incredibly lucky to miss the brutality of that storm, but its lessons reached us all. It made me think about the services which we so readily take for granted here in our small town.

I happen to think we have road care and fire protection quite as wonderful as any place in the state. Did you know that five members of our Fire Department joined the volunteer crews helping clear the ice and fallen trees in Grand Isle after the recent storm? Others wanted to go but stayed to cover our own needs. Bravo, Chief Jon Winston and all the volunteers who serve us! Road Foreman Mike Garand and his crew, Anthony Williams and Jason Buck, take such good care of our highways both during storms and in everyday maintenance. Gadabouts that we are, we want our road network to always be ready and waiting for us.

Thank you, Firefighters and Road Crew. You are high on my list of essentials of a good life. In my garden your services may be the stalwart potatoes, onions, and carrots but we couldn't live without you!

Austin and the Hall family have been long time friends, often sharing equipment and even barns over the years. In 1992, Austin joined John and Donna Hall, their sons Stuart and Richard and their wives Robyn and Bonnie in forming Fairmont Farm, Inc. Austin said this type of farm partnership is becoming more commonplace as farms are forced to streamline. Austin explained they wanted to farm here in town but also wanted to have time off as well. The decision was largely quality of life as well as economic. Today all employees and owners have scheduled time off. "For me it was a dream come true to create a modern dairy facility that will be well positioned for the 21st century."

The modern barns are home to nearly 600 Holstein milkers. The farm ships approximately 5000 gallons of fresh milk everyday to Booth Brothers in Barre. It takes many tons of corn and hay to feed these animals. During the cropping season, crops will be harvested from nearly 1200 acres of land. This has necessitated the rental of good farmland in town. "As I work some of this land, I reflect on the families who once farmed this land and toiled countless hours in the old barns which stand as a symbol of an earlier era. Many of these people were my friends and neighbors who provided for their families from this very land. It gives me great pleasure to see their land continue to be utilized for agricultural production."

During Austin's 36 years in town, he has served on the selectboard for 12 years and planning commission for four years. He was also a representative to the Central Vermont Solid Waste Board and believes we should take care of what we discard in a responsible manner within our own community. He was disappointed that the Central Vermont Solid Waste District was unable to convince voters of the benefits of siting a lined landfill within East Montpelier.

We visited about how town meetings have changed over the years. Austin really appreciates the enthusiasm and ideas that new residents bring to our town. "I think it is healthy that residents question how things are done in their community, just because we have done it that way for years does not always make it right."

Austin finished our visit by explaining that he is proud to live in a town where a significant amount of farm and forest land have been conserved while an outstanding recreational trail system has also been established for generations to enjoy. Austin's wish for the future is that residents will honor the town's agricultural heritage and respect the land that has been set aside for conservation. "We are blessed to live in such a beautiful community."

TOWN MEETING POTLUCK

For the third year we will share a potluck lunch on Town Meeting day. People seem to enjoy the congeniality in the midst of doing the town's business. And since people bring their best recipes, we are guaranteed a bountiful meal. Each family should bring a hot dish, salad, bread, OR dessert. Plan on four servings for each member of your family - for example, bring salad for 8 if there are two of you. This assures that there is plenty of food.

Please bring your food to the cafeteria window when you arrive. We'll give you a ticket showing how many people you brought food for. If you absolutely cannot bring food, call 223-2951 by Monday and plan to eat with us anyway. Your ticket will cost $3.00 which helps pay for butter, milk, coffee etc.

BEHIND THE SCENES AT THE FURNITURE BARN

Due to the high volume of sales, the mattress supply was nearly exhausted and so Mike Cote was off picking up another load. His wife Anita very willingly agreed to talk with me about her husband and the Furniture Barn. Anita says she never minds talking about Mike and his dedication to satisfying his customers.

Don Cote opened the Furniture Barn in 1978 on Route 2 in East Montpelier. Mike worked right along with his father from the time the business began. Don showed him the "ropes" to owning and operating a business and the financial know how necessary to succeed. Since the first day of operation, the Furniture Barn has offered very reasonable rates on furniture. Mike has kept the overhead down and, thus, passed the savings on to his customers who return time after time.

In the late 1980's, the Furniture Barn was struck by lightning and the second story of the barn was destroyed. Mike wanted to continue the business and his dad virtually turned the business over to him to run. After the damaged portion of the barn was repaired, Mike reopened for business and continued to run the business on his own until his marriage in 1992. In November, 1997, Mike and Anita officially took over the business as owners.

Over the years, the family-run business has grown and changed from a small inventory to a large inventory, offering a wide variety of furniture and name brands. The selection at the Furniture Barn ranges from bunk beds to king size beds and mattress sets; living room furniture, kitchen tables and chairs, along with accessories, dining room sets and hutches. They have even added futons to their inventory which is a hit with the younger crowd.

From 1992 to 1993 Mike even operated a discount grocery store in the basement of the Furniture Barn, which he really enjoyed because it offered groceries at a discount price and he felt he was helping people, plus he enjoyed getting to know the customers. Anita said he liked working there as much as working in the furniture part of the business because of the chance to chat more with the customers. When someone comes into the furniture portion, they usually know what they want and are very serious about their purchase and you deal with a customer in a different way.

Mike is a very "people oriented" individual — always aiming to please the customer. If he doesn't have the item you are looking for, he will always go the extra mile to get just what you want. Mike says the best part of his job is saving people money, knowing furniture dealers and their products to assure the best buy for the customer and seeing a satisfied customer.

Mike was born and raised in East Montpelier. In 1992 he and Anita were married and are the parents of 4 children: Marshall age 6, Trevor age 4, Maranda age 2 and Derrick 4 months old. They live in a small house behind the Furniture Barn, which, in the older days, was the meat market for Delair's Meats and has been made over into a house.

Mike has always been very active in men's basketball and plays on a Barre team in his time off. In the past, he has coached and sponsored a Furniture Barn team. Guess Mike will have to put his experience into coaching the youth basketball teams at East Montpelier Elementary School with Marshall getting into school, and pass his knowledge on to the next generation.

Because the Furniture Barn is open 7 days a week and is run by both Mike and Anita, there is not much time for hobbies or recreation. There never seems to be a good time to sneak in a vacation when you run a family-operated business. They are hoping for a few days off in April to attend a large family reunion in Florida — but only time will tell.

Because of Mike and Anita's friendly personalities and willingness to please their customers, people from as far away as Waitsfield, Hardwick, Eden, Barton and White River Junction return time after time and will say it's worth the drive!

Mary Anne Cerasoli

Mary Anne Cerasoli lives near the Furniture Barn with her husband Joe. She runs a typing service out of her home.
